One Hundred Twenty-Second Commencement
May Twentieth, Nineteen Hundred Eighty-Three
Eight-Thirty Friday Morning
The National Anthem

O, say! Can you see, by the dawn's early light, what so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.
O, say, does that Star Spangled Banner yet wave,
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Joseph D. Murphy

This pencil drawing of Washington University's Brookings Hall, one of the Saint Louis community's most famous landmarks, is the work of Joseph D. Murphy. Mr. Murphy joined the faculty of Washington University's School of Architecture in 1935 and was a full-time member until 1952. During that period, he served from 1949 to 1952 as dean of the School of Architecture. He left academia to form the firm of Murphy and Mackey, Architects, with the late Eugene J. Mackey, a member of the University's School of Architecture faculty from 1941 to 1952. (Mr. Mackey subsequently served as a lecturer on hospital architecture for the graduate program in hospital administration, Washington University School of Medicine, from 1951 to 1968, when he died.) After losing his partner, Mr. Murphy, together with some of the younger members of the Murphy and Mackey organization, formed a new firm, Murphy, Downey, Wofford & Richman. Now retired as a practicing partner, Mr. Murphy resumed teaching part-time as an affiliate professor of architecture at the University in the spring of 1980. In the spring of 1982, he had a one-man exhibition of his watercolors, charcoal and pencil drawings at Saint Louis University's Cupples House Gallery.
A Brief History of Washington University

Founded in 1853, the University was located in downtown St. Louis for its first fifty years. Ground for a new site on the edge of the city was purchased in 1894 and in 1900 construction was begun on the first five buildings of a plan based upon the medieval courtyards of Oxford and Cambridge Colleges.

These first ivy covered Gothic buildings with their red granite walls, arches and gargoyles formed the quadrangle. Upon completion, these original buildings were leased to the 1904 World’s Fair. The lease money made it possible to begin construction of additional buildings and all were used for the Fair before the University moved in. The athletic stadium, Francis Field, was built to accommodate the 1904 Olympic games, presented in conjunction with the Fair.

Over the years, the original “Academic Gothic” architecture has been succeeded by a variety of eclectic styles, but certain key principles of the original plan were retained. Plazas and courtyards still reflect the original theme.

A Note on the Commencement Ceremony

Washington University and other American universities, public and private, follow the pattern of degree granting developed at the University of Paris, which was founded about 1100.

In the early days of the University of Paris the discipline of the students, and indeed their entire education fell under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Paris who was responsible for local educational matters. In an attempt to perform his office, the Bishop claimed supervision of curriculum and degree-granting. Here he ran into trouble from the teachers who felt they were the proper judges of the qualifications of their students. They demanded the right to grant the degree.

The modern commencement ceremony represents a compromise between the Bishop and the teaching masters. By 1200 the masters were judging the merits of the student and then recommending him to the Bishop who conferred the degree. The ceremony you will witness this morning is the successor to this medieval compromise. The Faculty sits on the platform in its role as teacher and examiner. Its leaders, the Deans, present the qualified candidates to the Chancellor, acting as executive officer of the Board. Today the Chancellor and the Board act, as did the medieval Bishop when, acting together, they grant accreditation upon the student’s completion of the Faculty’s requirements.
A Note on Academic Dress

The academic dress worn by Faculty and candidates indicates the degree held, the subject in which it is held, and the institution granting it. Gowns are of three kinds: the Bachelor's with full, pointed sleeves, hanging open; the Master's with flowing sleeves which hang below the opening at the wrist; the Doctor's with very full sleeves gathered at the wrist. The gowns are black, although occasionally trimmed with colored velvet; the hoods, on the other hand, are of many colors. The color of the lining of the hood indicates the institution granting the degree: e.g., the hood of Washington University is lined with red and green. The color of the tassel on the cap and of the velvet edging of the hood, carried forward around the throat, indicates the division of the university:

Gold tassels and black tassels, when worn, indicate degree rather than faculty or major department. Thus gold indicates the Ph.D. degree and black indicates the Master's degree.

Academic dress markedly different from the above description indicates a degree from a foreign university.

Banners

In addition to the coloring present in the academic dress, the division is also represented on the University's Commencement banners. These banners are carried by a student marshal at the head of the procession for their division. They were designed by Louis Miksicek, a graduate of Washington University's Fine Arts School, in 1974, and custom-made by a St. Louis firm. You will note that the lower section of the banner is red and green, the University's colors, and that the upper section, which bears the seal of the University, is the color of the academic division.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS

SIR JOHN HAROLD PLUMB, social historian, teacher and author, is formerly a Master and Fellow of Christ’s College, University of Cambridge. A scholar of 18th century British history, Sir John has written both for his peers and a broader, popular audience. Prominent among his academic works are two volumes, with a third forthcoming, on the life of Sir Robert Walpole; The Origins of Political Stability: England, 1675-1725, and his classic text, England in the 18th Century. Sir John also wrote the script, later revised into a book, for a seven-hour special on British television in 1977 about the heritage of the British Crown. He has written for and served as senior editor and advisor to the American Heritage Company and Penguin Books for two decades. Sir John retired this spring after having been associated with Christ’s College, Cambridge, since 1946 as tutor, vice master, master, university lecturer, reader in modern English history and Chairman of the History Faculty. A trustee of the National Portrait Gallery since 1961, he currently serves as chairman of the Centre of East Anglian Studies, University of East Anglia. He received first class honors in history at the University of Leicester in 1933 and earned a doctorate from Christ’s College, Cambridge, in 1936.
DOCTOR OF SCIENCE

PHILIP MILLS ARNOLD, executive, researcher and scholar, retired in 1976 as vice president for research and development of Phillips Petroleum Company after nearly forty years with the company. Most of his career was spent in scientific research. He played a major role in the company's entry into the chemical industry, in which it rapidly became a major producer of synthetic rubber, plastics, fibers and fertilizers. He holds twenty-two patents. A member of the National Academy of Engineering since 1970, Mr. Arnold also has been active on the National Research Council. He served on the Executive Committee of its Division of Chemistry and Chemical Technology and on its committee on Scholarly Communication with the Peoples' Republic of China. While his professional life has been devoted to science and technology, his avocation has been study in the humanities. Mr. Arnold reads widely in several languages. A student of semiotics—the study of man's use of signs and symbols—Mr. Arnold has explored the history of communications, from efforts to relate through universal languages and alphabets, to systems to conceal, specifically, codes and ciphers. He founded and supported over the years the Philip Mills Arnold Semiotics Collection at Olin Library, which now contains over 2,300 rare books, journals and manuscripts. Mr. Arnold earned a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering in 1932 and a master of science degree in chemical engineering in 1941 from Washington University. In 1968 he was recognized at Founders Day with an Alumni Citation from the Washington University Board of Governors.

DR. ROSALYN S. YALOW, nuclear physicist and researcher, shared the Nobel Prize in physiology or medicine in 1977, the first woman to be so honored since the late Dr. Gerty Cori of Washington University in 1947. The award was given for the development of radioimmunoassay (RIA), a method using radioactive substances to detect and measure hormones in body fluids. Dr. Yalow and the late Dr. Solomon A. Berson first used the procedure to demonstrate that adult diabetics do not have an absolute deficiency of insulin but fail to respond appropriately to its presence. RIA has since been widely employed by clinical diagnosticians and biomedical investigators to measure hundreds of substances, including hormones, viruses, enzymes, vitamins and drugs. Dr. Yalow has spent nearly her entire career at the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Bronx, New York, where she is Senior Medical Investigator and Director of the Solomon A. Berson Research Laboratory. She is also Distinguished Professor-at-Large, Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Yeshiva University, and Chairman of the Department of Clinical Sciences, Montefiore Medical Center, Bronx, New York. She is a member of the National Academy of Sciences and the recipient of 28 honorary doctorates and numerous other honors. Dr. Yalow received a bachelor of arts degree in physics and chemistry, Hunter College, and master of science and doctor of philosophy degrees in physics, University of Illinois-Urbana.
