Brief History of Washington University/The Alma Mater

Washington University Campus Map
The Commencement Ceremony

Washington University and other American universities, public and private, follow the pattern of degree granting developed at the University of Paris, which was founded about 1100.

In the early days of the University of Paris the discipline of the students, and indeed their entire education fell under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Paris who was responsible for local educational matters. In an attempt to perform his office, the Bishop claimed supervision of curriculum and degree-granting. Here he ran into trouble from the teachers who felt they were the proper judges of the qualifications of their students. They demanded the right to grant the degree.

The modern commencement ceremony represents a compromise between the Bishop and the teaching masters. By 1200 the masters were judging the merits of the student and then recommending him to the Bishop who conferred the degree. The ceremony you will witness this morning is the successor to this medieval compromise. The Faculty sits on the platform in its role as teacher and examiner. Its leaders, the Deans, present the qualified candidates to the Chancellor. Acting upon the recommendation of the Faculty, the Chancellor, as executive officer of the Board of Trustees, formally confers the appropriate degree.

Academic Dress

The academic dress worn by Faculty and candidates indicates the degree held, the subject in which it is held, and the institution granting it. Gowns are of three kinds: the Bachelor's with full, pointed sleeves, hanging open; the Master's with flowing sleeves which hang below the opening at the wrist; the Doctor's with very full sleeves gathered at the wrist. The gowns are black, although occasionally trimmed with colored velvet. The hoods, on the other hand, are of many colors. The color of the lining of the hood indicates the institution granting the degree: e.g., the hood of Washington University is lined with red and green. The color of the tassel on the cap and of the velvet edging of the hood, carried forward around the throat, indicates the division of the university.

White—Arts, Letters, Humanities
Dark Blue—Philosophy
Golden Yellow—Science
Orange—Engineering
Gray—Technology
Blue Violet—Architecture
Silver Beige—Business
Brown—Fine Arts
Citron—Social Work
Purple—Law
Green—Medicine

Academic dress markedly different from the above description indicates a degree from a foreign university.

Banners

In addition to the coloring present in the academic dress, the division is also represented on the University's Commencement banners. These banners are carried by a student marshal at the head of the procession for their division. You will note that the side sections of the banners are red and green, the University's colors, and that the center section, which bears the seal of the University, is the color of the academic division.

CEREMONIAL, COMMENCEMENT AND STUDENT MARSHALS

Ceremonial Marshals are charged with the responsibility of hooding Student Marshals during the commencement exercises when degrees are conferred to each division. Commencement Marshals lead each division during the opening commencement procession. Student Marshals are selected by the deans of each division to represent the student body of their division. The student marshals carry the divisional banners and signs during the procession.

Emeritus Appointments

Each year some members of the Washington University faculty reach the rank of emeritus. Their ability and service, in the classroom and out, has enriched the University and the lives of their students and colleagues. In appreciation for what they have done, we record here the names of those who attain emeritus rank by the end of the academic year 1991-1992.

WALTER F. BALLINGER
Professor of Surgery (General Surgery)
At Washington University since 1967

ROWLAND T. BERTHOFF
William Eliot Smith Professor of History
At Washington University since 1962

HUGH CHAPLIN, JR.
Professor of Medicine
At Washington University since 1955
(Effective July 1, 1991)

MARGARET H. CLARE
Professor of Neurology (Neurophysiology)
At Washington University since 1948

SVEN G. ELIASSEN
Professor of Neurology
At Washington University since 1963

DONALD FINKEL

At Washington University since 1951

LAWRENCE I. KAHN
Professor of Pediatrics
At Washington University since 1949

BARRY R. SCHACTMAN
Professor of Art
At Washington University since 1961

SAMUEL E. SCHECHTER
Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine
At Washington University since 1948

HEIKKI M. SEPPA
Professor of Art
At Washington University since 1965

EUGENE B. SHULTZ, JR.
Professor of Technology and Human Affairs
At Washington University since 1979
(Effective July 1, 1992)

JOSEPH VARNER
Charles Reustock Professor of Biology
At Washington University since 1973

ROBERT L. WILLIAMS
Professor of Psychology and African and Afro-American Studies
At Washington University since 1969
HONORARY GRAND MARSHAL

NORRIS KELLEY SMITH

Professor Emeritus of Art History and Archaeology since 1983, Norris K. Smith joined the faculty of Washington University in 1956. He received his baccalaureate, masters and doctorate degrees from Columbia University and served as instructor of Art History at Columbia and Hunter College. His publications include Frank Lloyd Wright: A Study in Architectural Content, Medieval Art, and On Art and Architecture in the Modern World as well as articles in various journals and encyclopedias. Professor Smith served as acting chairman of the Department of Art and Archaeology on numerous occasions before becoming chairman of the Department in 1977. Among the alumni of Washington University, he is best remembered as “teacher who made a difference,” one who not only informed them about art, but challenged them to see art and the world in new ways.
HONORARY DEGREES

FRANK J. DIXON

Doctor of Science

Frank J. Dixon, M.D., has been a major leader in the study of immunological diseases. Prior to his work that began in the late 1940s, scientists knew very little about how the immune system’s reaction to foreign materials (antigens) could cause harm to individuals. Dr. Dixon, founder of the Research Institute of the Scripps Clinic in La Jolla, Calif., developed a series of experimental conditions that caused antigens and antibodies to form in the blood and produce inflammation. He discovered how these antigens and antibodies that are lodged in the blood vessels and kidney can result in serious disease. For example, much of the information on certain inflammatory conditions, such as human vasculitis (inflammation of the blood vessel) and glomerulonephritis (inflammation of the kidney) are based on the exhaustive experimental analysis from Dr. Dixon’s laboratory. He began this research in the Department of Pathology at the Washington University School of Medicine, where he was an instructor from 1948-1950, and an assistant professor from 1950-51. Dr. Dixon’s work has been published extensively in prestigious peer-reviewed journals. “Dr. Dixon’s work opened up a whole new field of immunopathology, made scientists aware of how autoimmune diseases developed, and established a firm mechanism for understanding immunological diseases. These seminal studies were unique in the world and resulted in his research group developing an international reputation,” says Emil R. Unanue, M.D., Edward Mallinckrodt Professor and head of the Department of Pathology at the Washington University School of Medicine. Under Dr. Dixon’s leadership, the Research Institute of the Scripps Clinic developed into one of the country’s leading biomedical research institutions. As founding director, he served in that position from 1974-1986. He was chairman of the institute’s biomedical research departments from 1970-74 and chairman of the organization’s experimental pathology department from 1961-1974. He now serves as director emeritus and an institute member and has been a director of the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation since 1974. He is an adjunct professor in the pathology department at the University of California, San Diego, as well. Before founding the institute, Dr. Dixon was head of the Department of Pathology at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine. His career also includes working as a research assistant at the Harvard Medical School. A native of St. Paul, Minn., Dr. Dixon received his undergraduate and medical training at the University of Minnesota. He received a bachelor of science degree, with a concentration in medicine, in 1941; a bachelor’s degree in medicine in March 1943; and a medical degree in December 1943. He was a recipient of the University of Minnesota’s Regents Award in 1985 and received an honorary doctor of science degree from the Medical College of Ohio in 1983. Dr. Dixon’s professional affiliations include membership in various national and international societies of immunology and pathology. He is a former president of the American Association of Pathologists and of the American Association of Immunologists. A diplomate of the American Board of Pathology. Dr. Dixon also has served on various advisory committees. Among Dr. Dixon’s numerous honors are the 1967 Von Pirquet Medal from the Annual Forum on Allergy, the 1969 Gairdner Foundation International Award, the 1987 Gold-Headed Cane Award from the American Association of Pathologists, the 1989 Paul Klemperer Award from the New York Academy of Medicine and the 1990 Jean Hamburger Award from the International Society of Nephrology. He has been elected to the National Academy of Sciences and to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

MARIAN WRIGHT EDELMAN

Doctor of Humanities

This Oct. 11, 1990, Los Angeles Times headline says it all: “Children’s Champion; Marian Wright Edelman Is ... America’s Most Powerful Advocate for the Young.” Mrs. Edelman, founder and president of the Children’s Defense Fund (CDF), has been an advocate for disadvantaged Americans, particularly children, throughout her professional career, which began during the 1960’s civil rights movement. Under her leadership, the non-profit Washington-based CDF has become one of the nation’s most active and effective organizations concerned with a wide range of family and children’s issues. CDF’s mission is to educate the nation about the needs of children and to encourage preventive investment in children before they get sick, drop out of school, face too-early pregnancy, experience family breakdown or get into trouble. Mrs. Edelman was born in Bennettsville, S.C. Her father, a Baptist minister, taught his five children that only homework came before helping the sick and needy of their hometown. She graduated with honors from Spelman College in 1960 and from Yale Law School in 1963. Mrs. Edelman began her campaign for children in the mid-1960s when, as the first black woman admitted to the Mississippi bar, she directed the Legal Defense and Education Fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Jackson, Miss. As director from 1964 to 1968, she not only was involved in many civil rights cases, but she also successfully helped fend off political attacks against the Child Development Group of Mississippi — one of the largest Head Start programs in the country with more than 100 centers in mostly poor, rural communities. Mrs. Edelman was influential in bringing Head Start, a program for poor preschoolers, to a reluctant Mississippi. Mrs. Edelman left Mississippi in 1968 and moved to Washington, D.C., where she founded the Washington Research Project, a voice for low-income people in the nation’s capital. In 1973 she expanded the research project into the Children’s Defense Fund, which advocates the prevention of adolescent pregnancy and the improvement of child health, education, child care, youth employment, child welfare and mental health, and family support systems. CDF launched an ongoing national campaign in 1983 to prevent teen-age pregnancy and provide positive life options for youth. In 1990, after a three-year effort, CDF saw the enactment of new national child-care legislation that will provide assistance to low-income working families. The 1990 Los Angeles Times feature story on Edelman said, “Over the past 20 years, Edelman has become the most powerful advocate in America for children, a feared lobbyist demanding that the government provide the support the nation’s young so desperately need.” Other profiles have included a story in the New Yorker and a segment on “60 Minutes,” which mentioned that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy referred to Edelman as “the 101st senator.” In 1990 Ladies Home Journal named Mrs. Edelman one of America’s most powerful women and Business Week named her one of the best managers of nonprofit organizations. She was one of America’s 200 young leaders in 1971 according to Time magazine. The first black woman elected to the Yale University Corporation, Mrs. Edelman currently serves. on the boards of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, the Actina Life and Casualty Foundation, the March of Dimes and Spelman College. She also is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations. Among her major awards are a MacArthur Foundation Prize Fellowship and the Albert Schweitzer Humanitarian Award. Her book The Measure of Our Success: A Letter to My Children and Yours, released by Beacon Press this Mother's Day, May 10, has received high praise from public figures, including Bill Cosby, T. Berry Brazelton, Robert Coles and Maya Angelou. In 1987, Harvard University Press published Families in Peril: An Agenda for Social Change, based on Mrs. Edelman's W.E.B. DuBois Lectures, delivered at Harvard in 1986. She is married to Peter Edelman, a professor of law at Georgetown University. They have three sons: Joshua, Jonah and Ezra.

A. E. HOTCHNER

DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS

Author, playwright and philanthropist A. E. Hotchner has led a fascinating life. Born and raised in St. Louis during the Depression, he has had adventures and friendships that rival those about which he has written. Mr. Hotchner's friendship with Ernest Hemingway was perhaps the most pivotal in his life. He first met Hemingway in 1948 while on assignment for Cosmopolitan magazine. What began as a professional relationship blossomed into a lasting friendship between the two writers, both of whom had strong St. Louis ties (two of Hemingway's wives grew up here). Mr. Hotchner may be best known for his 1966 biography of Hemingway, Papa Hemingway, which has been published in 34 countries and translated into 28 languages. Papa Hemingway chronicles the more than 10 years of their friendship, until Hemingway's death in 1961. Mr. Hotchner's first book, he says, came when he received a scholarship to Washington University. Mr. Hotchner, who majored in English, had an early taste of success in a playwriting course — English 16 — in which he and two other students won a contest to have their one-act plays produced. The three beat out the odds-on favorite, a student named Tom Williams, later known as Tennessee. After earning a law degree, also at Washington University, he briefly practiced law before being drafted into World War II. At the end of the war he settled in New York City and became a free-lance author. Mr. Hotchner also worked for Cosmopolitan as "a literary bounty hunter," seeking out famous writers who had once contributed to the magazine and urging them to contribute again. Thus began a series of meetings with the famous, including Dorothy Parker, Marlene Dietrich and Frank Sinatra, that guided the course of his life and formed the basis for some of the celebrity portraits in his 1984 book, Choice People: The Greats, Near-Greats and Ingrates I Have Known. "I wanted to write about the people who had come into my life, and make people who are not stars or superachievers understand that these people had the same problems everyone else does," he said in a 1984 St. Louis Post-Dispatch article. Mr. Hotchner's numerous other books include The Man Who Lived at the Ritz: and Looking for Miracles, both of which recently have been produced for television. His memoir of his St. Louis boyhood, King of the Hill, currently is being produced as a feature film by Robert Redford. Among his most recent works are Ernest Hemingway and Our Time and a study of the 1960s, titled Blown Away: The Rolling Stones and the Death of the Sixties. A prolific writer, Mr. Hotchner also has written plays, musicals and screenplays. In the 1950s he wrote a series of distinguished screenplays for the popular television program Playhouse 90. Those screenplays included adaptations of Ernest Hemingway's The Snows of Kilimanjaro, For Whom the Bell Tolls, The Killers and The Fifth Column. His screenplay for Hemingway's The Battler starred Paul Newman and was the first leading role of Newman's acting career. Mr. Hotchner, who now lives next door to long-time friends Newman and Joanne Woodward in Westport, Conn., has found further success in an accidental business venture with Newman. In 1982 the two men founded "Newman's Own" food products as an outgrowth of their popular salad dressing recipe. "We've taken in $1 million," Mr. Hotchner said in the 1984 Post-Dispatch article. "When the money started coming in, Newman said, 'Hotchner, we've got to give it away.' So that's what we do. We may be the only million-dollar business in the world that gives all its profits away." The company, which, in addition to salad dressing, sells popcorn, spaghetti sauce, salsa and lemonade, now generates millions of dollars of annual profit that is totally contributed to numerous charities. Mr. Hotchner and Newman also built the Hole in the Wall Gang Camp in Connecticut for children with cancer and other life-threatening diseases. Mr. Hotchner, who has never forgotten his roots, returns often to St. Louis (his younger brother, Selwyn, still lives here) and to his alma mater. Mr. Hotchner has given the University financial support for an annual playwriting competition administered by the Performing Arts Department. The winning play receives a full production in the Mallinckrodt Drama Studio, effectively re-establishing the beloved English 16 course, which began his interest in the theatre. His generosity has supported numerous other projects at Washington University, including a recent conference on the works of Ernest Hemingway, and has helped facilitate an upcoming collaboration between the acclaimed Actors Studio in New York City and the University's Performing Arts Department. Mr. Hotchner also is a supporter of the University's scholarship program, the same one that enabled him to attend Washington University back in the 1930s.

JACQUELINE JOYNER-KERSEE

Doctor of Laws

Jacqueline Joyner-Kersee, holder of two Olympic gold medals, is considered the world's best female athlete. She also is considered by the many people whose lives she has touched to have a heart of gold. The track and field athlete won her first Olympic medal — a silver — in 1984 during the Los Angeles Olympics. Competing in the heptathlon, she missed the gold medal by five points. The heptathlon, an intense two-day track and field competition, involves seven events: 100-meter hurdles, shot put, high jump, 200-meter dash, long jump, javelin and 800-meter run. She then brought home two gold medals from the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea, breaking Olympic and world records in the heptathlon and an Olympic record in the long jump. She was the first person to top 7,000 in the points—performance scoring system in the heptathlon, breaking the world record four times. This summer she again will compete in both the heptathlon and the long jump in the Olympics in Barcelona, Spain. Through her dedication to achieving her goals along with her interest in helping others realize their potential, she serves as a role model for young people. Born in impoverished East St. Louis, Ill., Ms. Joyner-Kersee has preserved her hometown ties while excelling in track and field events around the world. Her coach at Lincoln High — Nino Fennoy — encouraged her to develop her academic as well as her athletic skills. As reported in a 1988 Time magazine article on Ms. Joyner-Kersee, Fennoy required her to keep journals when she went on road trips with her athletic teams and he monitored her syntax and spelling. He told her, "Where you're going, you'll need to express yourself with more than your arms and legs." She passes such advice on to the young people she meets in her travels. Ms. Joyner-Kersee is committed to enriching the American educational process and actively encourages youths to master their skills and to realize their personal goals and objectives. When she's not training or competing on the track, the California resident is giving motivational speeches, discussing fitness and self-improvement techniques or conducting track clinics for young people across the United States. She also is very involved in the Jackie Joyner-Kersee Community Foundation, which she began in 1989. The foundation developed from a dream she has had of returning to her hometown to help others. She plans to open a community center in East St. Louis similar to the one she attended when she was growing up there. The foundation's immediate goals involve instituting a leadership program for elementary school and high school youth around the country. The program will offer a holistic approach to the development of well-rounded leaders through academics, athletics, arts, recreation, mentoring and scholarships. In addition, she is a spokesperson for several major corporations, including McDonald's, Adidas, IBM and Xerox; she is on the boards of numerous organizations, among them the Girls Club of St. Louis, McKendree College in Lebanon, Ill., the Women's Sports Foundation, and the U.S. Olympic Committee; and she is a member of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. She also is president and CEO of JJK & Associates, Inc., a marketing management firm. It was while she was attending the University of California, Los Angeles, on a basketball scholarship that her potential as a track and field star was "discovered" by Bob Kersee, who is now her coach and husband. Ms. Joyner-Kersee graduated in 1985 with a bachelor's degree in history from UCLA, where she was named a scholar athlete and most valuable player in basketball and track and field. In addition to her numerous medals, Ms. Joyner-Kersee has been recognized in many ways off the track. Among her honors, she received the 1986 James E. Sullivan Award, which goes to the most outstanding amateur athlete in the country. She was the first woman to receive the prestigious Sporting News Athlete of the Year Award and the first two-year consecutive winner of the Jesse Owens' Memorial Award from The Athletics Congress. The U.S. Olympic Committee named her Sportswoman of the Year two years in a row and she was Essence Magazine's Woman of the Year in 1988 and Track & Field News' Woman Athlete of the Year in 1986 and 1987.

EDWARD C. STONE, JR.

Doctor of Science

Edward C. Stone Jr. has been a guiding force behind one of the most successful expeditions in the history of space exploration — the Voyager Mission and its "Grand Tour" of the outer planets. Named the Voyager project scientist in 1972, Dr. Stone participated in both hardware development and mission operations during his 18-year tenure. The twin Voyager spacecraft, launched in 1977, visited Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, sending back never-before-seen close-up photos of all four planets and their satellites, as well as an unprecedented image of the entire solar system. "Those who devoted their careers to this incredible voyage of exploration rank right up there with Columbus, Magellan, DeSoto and others who took the 'unknown' out of terra incognita," said a Feb. 2, 1992, article in the Chicago Tribune. Dr. Stone, who coordinated the efforts of 11 teams of Voyager Mission scientists, received from President Bush the 1991 National Medal of Science in physical sciences "for his outstanding leadership as project scientist for the Voyager space mission and his experiments in the outer solar system." The Voyager Mission, managed by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at the California Institute of Technology (Caltech), is now entering its last stage, traveling beyond the solar system into interstellar space. And Dr. Stone, a professor of physics at Caltech, has a new position at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which Caltech operates for NASA. On Jan. 1, 1991, he became director of the 175-acre research laboratory — the world's leading center for planetary exploration — and a vice president of Caltech. He previously served as Caltech's vice president for astronomical facilities. Dr. Stone also is chairman of the board of directors of the California Association for Research in Astronomy, which is responsible for building and operating the world's largest telescope — the W.M. Keck Observatory and Telescope on Mauna Kea, Hawaii. Dr. Stone joined Caltech as a research fellow in physics after receiving his master of science degree (1959) and doctorate (1964) in physics from the University of Chicago. The recipient of a Sloan Foundation fellowship (1971-73), Dr. Stone was chairman of Caltech's Division of Physics, Mathematics and Astronomy from 1983-88. Since his first cosmic-ray experiments on Discoverer satellites in 1961, Dr. Stone has been a principal investigator on nine NASA spacecraft missions and has served as co-investigator on five other NASA missions for which he developed high resolution instruments for measuring the isotopic and elemental composition of energetic cosmic-ray nuclei. Using these instruments, Dr. Stone and his colleagues undertook some of the first studies of the isotopic composition of three distinct samples of matter. This matter arrives at Earth as cosmic rays from nearby regions in our galaxy, as solar energetic particles from the sun, and as the anomalous component from the local interstellar medium. These instruments also have been used for studies of planetary magnetospheres, including the discovery of energetic sulfur and oxygen ions from Jupiter's satellite Io. Dr. Stone also jointly developed a large-area electronic satellite instrument for measuring the abundances of very rare heavy galactic cosmic-ray nuclei, such as lead and platinum, and has collaborated in the development of an imaging gamma-ray telescope. Born in Knoxville, Iowa, Dr. Stone earned his associate of arts degree in 1956 from Burlington Junior College before continuing his studies at the University of Chicago. Among the many scientific awards and honors Dr. Stone has received are the NASA Medal for Exceptional Scientific Achievement, the NASA Distinguished Service Medal, the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics Dryden Medal and Space Science Award, and the NASA Distinguished Public Service Medal. He also is the recipient of the NASA Outstanding Leadership Medal, the Aviation Week & Space Technology Aerospace Laurels Award, the National Space Club Science Award and the Association for Unmanned Vehicle Systems National Award for Operations. Dr. Stone is a member of the National Academy of Sciences and the International Academy of Astronautics. He also is a fellow of the American Physical Society and the American Geophysical Union, an associate fellow of the American Institute of Aeronautics, a member of the International Astronomical Union, and an honorary member of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific.

A Brief History of Washington University

Founded in 1853, the University was located in downtown St. Louis for its first fifty years. Ground for a new site on the edge of the city was purchased in 1894 and in 1900 construction was begun on the first five buildings of a plan based upon the medieval courtyards of Oxford and Cambridge Colleges.

These first ivy covered Gothic buildings with their red granite walls, arches and gargoyles formed the quadrangle. Upon completion, these original buildings were leased to the 1904 World's Fair. The lease money made it possible to begin construction of additional buildings and all were used for the Fair before the University moved in. The athletic stadium, Francis Field, was built to accommodate the 1904 Olympic games, presented in conjunction with the Fair.

Over the years, the original "Academic Gothic" architecture has been succeeded by a variety of eclectic styles, but certain key principles of the original plan were retained. Plazas and courtyards still reflect the original theme.

The Alma Mater

Dear Alma Mater, Thy name is sweet to me
Our hearts are all for thee
Fair Washington
Thy halls shall honored be Throughout this great country
For all eternity, Our Washington.

Those days of youth which All of us spent with the Form a dear history, Fair Washington
Could they renewed be, We'd live our days with thee
For all eternity, Our Washington.
