WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

One Hundred and Thirty-Fourth

COMMENCEMENT
A BRIEF HISTORY OF WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Founded in 1853, the University was located in downtown St. Louis for its first fifty years. Ground for a new site on the edge of the city was purchased in 1894 and in 1900 construction was begun on the first five buildings of a plan based upon the medieval courtyards of Oxford and Cambridge Colleges.

These first ivy covered Gothic buildings with their red granite walls, arches and gargoyles formed the quadangle. Upon completion, these original buildings were leased to the 1904 World's Fair. The lease money made it possible to begin construction of additional buildings and all were used for the Fair before the University moved in. The athletic stadium, Francis Field, was build to accommodate the 1904 Olympic games, presented in conjunction with the Fair.

Over the years, the original "Academic Gothic" architecture has been succeeded by a variety of eclectic styles, but certain key principles of the original plan were retained. Plazas and courtyards still reflect the original theme.

THE COMMENCEMENT CEREMONY

Washington University and other American universities, public and private, follow the pattern of degree granting developed at the University of Paris, which was founded about 1100.

In the early days of the University of Paris the discipline of the students, and indeed their entire education fell under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Paris who was responsible for local educational matters. In an attempt to perform his office, the Bishop claimed supervision of curriculum and degree-granting. Here he ran into trouble from the teachers who felt they were the proper judges of the qualifications of their students. They demanded the right to grant the degree.

The modern commencement ceremony represents a compromise between the Bishop and the teaching masters. By 1200 the masters were judging the merits of the student and then recommending him to the Bishop who conferred the degree. The ceremony you will witness this morning is the successor to this medieval compromise. The Faculty sits on the platform in its role as teacher and examiner. Its leaders, the Deans, present the qualified candidates to the Chancellor. Acting upon the recommendation of the Faculty, the Chancellor, as executive officer of the Board of Trustees, formally confers the appropriate degree.

ACADEMIC DRESS

The academic dress worn by Faculty and candidates indicates the degree held, the subject in which it is held, and the institution granting it. Gowns are of three kinds: the Bachelor's with full, pointed sleeves, hanging open; the Master's with flowing sleeves which hang below the opening at the wrist; the Doctor's with very full sleeves gathered at the wrist. The color of the gowns, once uniformly black, are now determined by the degree granting institution. The hoods, traditionally, are of many colors. The color of the lining of the hood indicates the institution granting the degree: e.g., the hood of Washington University is lined with red and green. The color of the tassel on the cap and of the velvet edging of the hood, carried forward around the throat, indicates the division of the university.

White—Arts, Letters, Humanities  Silver Beige—Business
Light Blue—Education  Brown—Art
Dark Blue—Philosophy  Citron—Social Work
Golden Yellow—Science  Purple—Law
Orange—Engineering  Green—Medicine
Blue Violet—Architecture

Academic dress markedly different from the above description indicates a degree from a foreign university.

BANNERS

In addition to the coloring present in the academic dress, the division is also represented on the University's Commencement banners. These banners are carried by a student marshal at the head of the procession for their division. You will note that the side sections of the banners are red and green, the University's colors, and that the center section, which bears the seal of the University, is the color of the academic division.

THE QUADRANGLE

The site of the University Commencement Ceremony each spring, the Quadrangle is surrounded by the University's four oldest buildings: Brookings Hall to the east, Ridley Hall to the west, Cupples Hall I to the north and Busch Hall to the south. All four buildings were used by the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company during the 1904 World's Fair. The outdoor stage was added in 1965 and named after Louis D. Beaumont, founder of the May Department Store Company. The Quadrangle contains a number of commemorative plaques and inscriptions. As you walk up the main steps leading to the archway separating North and South Brookings Hall, two inscriptions on the east facade recognize the University's original founding in 1853 as Eliot Seminary and its re-christening as Washington University in 1877. The Latin inscription above the archway reads: Discere St Capitis Interna; Salvere Habemus ("If you desire to learn, enter: We bid you welcome").

The plaque embedded in the ground beneath the Brookings Hall archway honors Washington University's founder and first Chancellor William Greenleaf Eliot. The plaque was given to the University during the centennial celebrations in 1953 by the First Unitarian Church of St. Louis.

Finally, on the west façade of Brookings Hall above the clock the Latin inscription reads: Cudant Horse, Opera Mangent ("The horses go by, but the works remain").

UNIVERSITY SEAL

The University emblem was originally designed by a faculty member in 1806 and formally approved by the Board of Trustees in 1897. The seal consists of the following elements:

- A shield with two bars and three stars both taken from President George Washington's coat of arms.
- At the bottom of the shield three fleurs-de-lis representing King Louis IX of France after whom the City of St. Louis was named.
- The University motto Per Vincirem Vicem ("Strength Through Truth").

The original design did not incorporate the University's motto. However, the motto and the words "Washington University in St. Louis" both appear on the cover of the 1897-1898 annual Catalogue of courses. The seal first appeared on the cover of the University Commencement program in 1920.

CEREMONIAL, COMMENCEMENT AND STUDENT MARSHALS

Ceremonial Marshals are charged with the responsibility of hooding Student Marshals during the commencement exercises when degrees are conferred to each division. Ceremonial Marshals lead each division during the opening commencement procession. Ceremonial Marshals are selected by the deans of each division to represent the student body of their division. The student marshals carry the divisional banners and signs during the procession.

Instructor in Clinical Obstetrics and Gynecology
At Washington University since 1962
HONORARY GRAND MARSHAL

BERNARD BECKER, M.D.

Professor Emeritus Bernard Becker joined the Washington University faculty in 1953 as Chairman of the Department of Ophthalmology. For more than thirty-five years he led the department’s development into an internationally recognized center for research and teaching. Many of his students now head departments or contribute in other significant ways to academic ophthalmology. He has taught more recent members of the American Board of Ophthalmology than any other person. His own work on glaucoma is world-renowned. In 1990, Washington University recognized Dr. Becker’s distinction with an Honorary Doctor of Science and, in 1995, he received the same honor from the University of Zurich.

After receiving his A. B. from Princeton, his M.D. from Johns Hopkins, and interning at Mount Sinai Hospital, Dr. Becker served for several years as Captain in the U. S. Army Medical Corps. Upon discharge, he did his residency at Johns Hopkins’ Wilmer Institute, first as a Chalfonte Fellow, then as a Kellogg Fellow, before coming to Washington University. Co-author of a classic text on glaucoma diagnosis and treatment, Dr. Becker has authored several other books, book chapters and hundreds of journal articles. He was the first editor-in-chief of the Journal of Investigative Ophthalmology.

Dr. Becker is a member of many honorary and professional organizations, including Alpha Omega Alpha, Sigma Xi, the Oster Society, the American Board of Ophthalmology, and the International Glaucoma Society. He is also recipient of prestigious awards and award lectures in this country and Europe: the Proctor Award, the Fiedlerweil Award from the Association for Research in Vision and Ophthalmology, the New York Academy of Medicine Award, the Schonberg Award, the Washington University Medical Alumni Award, and, most recently, the Helen Keller Award.

The esteem in which Dr. Becker is held by the medical community arises not only from his seminal contributions as scientist, educator, and physician, but from his accomplishments as a citizen of that community. He has served on countless advisory boards and committees and for eight years chaired the Ophthalmological Training Grant and Research Committees of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness. He subsequently served on the council of the National Eye Institute and as one of the founders of the Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology. His skill and wisdom in chairing the steering committee responsible for planning and constructing the new library and communications center of our own School of Medicine led to its being named this year as the Bernard Becker Medical Library.

HONORARY DEGREES

JOHNNETTA BETSCH COLE

DOCTOR OF HUMANITIES

Johnnetta B. Cole, Ph.D., is the first African-American woman to head Atlanta’s Spelman College, a historically black college for women. In addition, Dr. Cole, a respected anthropologist whose work has broken ground in black and women’s studies, is also Spelman’s first scholar president. Born in Jacksonville, Florida, where she attended segregated schools, Dr. Cole enrolled in Fisk University’s early entrance program at age 15. She received an undergraduate degree from Oberlin College and a master’s degree and doctorate in anthropology from Northwestern University, where she trained under the noted social scientist and African specialist Melville J. Herskovits. She has since edited two popular textbooks titled Anthropology for the Nineties and All-American Women: That Divided, That Blind, both published by Free Press. The books are used in classrooms throughout the United States. Furthermore, some of her numerous published articles are reprinted in academic and popular journals. In 1987 Dr. Cole became Spelman’s seventh president after serving as professor of anthropology and director of the Latin American and Caribbean Studies Program at New York’s Hunter College. Prior to her appointment at Spelman, she also was a member of the City University of New York’s graduate faculty. At Hunter College, one student called her a “once-in-a-lifetime teacher and a truly special person,” according to The Magazine. At her inauguration as Spelman’s president, entertainer Bill Cosby and his wife, Camille, gave a $20 million gift to the college — the single largest gift from individuals to a historically black college or university. Under Dr. Cole’s leadership, the college has attracted increasing numbers of outstanding students. Since 1987, the SAT scores of Spelman’s first-year classes have been among the highest averages of students at any historically black college or university. In 1992 Spelman made history by becoming the first historically black college to receive a number one ranking in U.S. News & World Report’s annual college issue of “Best College Buys.” Spelman was named the number one regional liberal arts college in the South. At Spelman, Dr. Cole is affectionately known as “Sister President.” She inspires respect and affection wherever she goes, according to Mt. In an October 1987 profile of the “Sister President,” writer Susan McHenry noted that Dr. Cole’s “charismatic personality, cooperative leadership style, and firm ‘black womanist’ attitude raise expectations for an exciting new era at Spelman.” In the article, one of Dr. Cole’s colleagues noted that “When you’re in Johnnetta’s presence, you’re aware you’re dealing with someone who is genuine, and you end up liking her very much.” During her 30-year career as an anthropologist, professor, administrator, author, researcher and lecturer, Dr. Cole has been an advocate for women and people of color everywhere. In Conversations: Straight Talk With America’s Sister President, her 1993 book, Dr. Cole speaks directly to African-American women. She sits on diverse boards and belongs to a number of professional and socially active organizations. In 1992 then-President-elect Clinton appointed her to his transition team as diversity coordinator for education, labor, and the arts and humanities. She chairs the Department of Education’s board for the National Endowment for the Arts. In 1994 Martin Luther King Distinguished Service Award from the Georgia State Holiday Commission, the 1994 Outstanding Contribution to Higher Education Award from the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, the 1993 American Anthropological Association Distinguished Service Award and the 1992 Sara Lee Corporation Front Runner Award in the Humanities. In addition, in 1991 she was named Working Woman magazine’s “10 Women to Watch in the 90s” and was inducted into the magazine’s Hall of Fame in 1989. Dr. Cole is married to Arthur J. Robinson Jr. and is the mother of three sons and two stepsons. By her own admission, she also is the surrogate mother of all the women enrolled at Spelman College.

ELIZABETH GRAY DANFORTH

DOCTOR OF HUMANITIES

There is no academic training or degree program to help prepare someone for being a chancellor’s wife, but for more than 20 years that role has been performed with great natural ability by Elizabeth “Ibby” G. Danforth. Mrs. Danforth’s curiosity, energy and approachable style have been her tools to connect with students, faculty and alumni. A graduate of Wellesley College, she has, in the words of Burton M. Wheeler, Ph.D., professor of English and religious studies and chair of the Commencement Committee, “embraced Washington University with the ardor of a first love.” A devoted ambassador of the University, Mrs. Danforth stays in tune with faculty and students by attending lectures, performances, student-sponsored events and by taking undergraduate classes — she fits one per semester into her already busy schedule. In addition to the intellectual stimulation, she finds that being in the classroom gives her “an idea of what the students are concerned about.” As the chancellor’s wife, she doesn’t exactly fit the profile of a typical student. “I can be anonymous for about six weeks, then the word gets out.” Her active participation and involvement in campus life are a source of reassurance to parents she meets at orientation, parents weekend and semiannual meetings of the Parents Council. Mrs. Danforth stays in touch with the alumni and community and corporate leaders by hosting countless receptions on campus and traveling worldwide with the chancellor to alumni chapter events, national dinners for the Eliot Society and visits with alumni and corporate leaders. Elizabeth Danforth has repeatedly shown a special knack for understanding the needs and concerns of
EDWIN GERARD KREBS

Doctor of Science

There were 75 messages on the answering machine when Dr. Edwin Gerhard Krebs, D.D.S., awoke on Monday, October 12, 1992. Dr. Krebs’ reaction to discovering that he and Edmund Fischer had won a Nobel Prize was predictable. "It was, ‘If you’re long enough, anything can happen.’" But the Nobel committee knew the biochemists’ research had uncovered a fundamental mechanism in the cells’ regulation of metabolism.

This information was generating new ideas for combating cancer and other major disorders. The prize-winning work had been going on almost 20 years earlier, after Dr. Krebs had spent two years as a research fellow with Carl and Gerty Cori at Washington University School of Medicine. The husband and wife team shared a 1947 Nobel Prize for discovering how cells degrade glycogen (animal starch) into small molecules that serve as sources of energy. When Dr. Krebs moved to the University of Washington, Seattle, in 1948, he continued to work on this topic, joining forces with him at the University in a muscle enzyme-activated phosphorylase. Enzymes are proteins that speed up chemical reactions that otherwise would occur too slowly to be useful to living organisms. Dr. Krebs and Fischer discovered to their surprise that phosphorylase must be switched on chemically by another enzyme, a protein kinase, before it goes to work. The kinase activates the switch by adding a phosphate group, which a third enzyme removes to return phosphorylase to its inactive state. "It was a major breakthrough, but the ramifications went far beyond this and were discovered in an enormous research area because protein kinases proved to be central to the lives of cells. Over the past 20 years, countless examples have been lighted, and 50,000 to 100,000 research papers are published on this topic every year. Kinases regulate many aspects of cell growth, division and differentiation, and they run basic processes that are central to leading to clinical disorders. Many important contributions emerged from Dr. Krebs’ Laboratory at the University of Washington, and from Stanford University, California. Davis. His more than 300 research papers have detailed the structure, function and regulation of protein kinases, which are the key part. Dr. Krebs is currently professor emeritus in the departments of Pharmacology, University of Washington, and senior investigator emeritus in the Howard Hughes Medical Institute, Bethesda, Maryland. His current research focuses on cell growth and neuroprotective therapies for diseases such as diabetes. Dr. Krebs was born in Lansing, Iowa, in 1918 but spent his childhood in Greenville, Illinois. His father, a Presbyterian minister, died when Dr. Krebs was 15 years old, and his mother moved the family to Urbana, Illinois, so the children could live at home while attending the university there. Dr. Krebs obtained a bachelor's degree in chemistry from the University of Illinois in 1946 and a medical degree from Washington University School of Medicine in 1953. In 1954 Dr. Krebs and his wife moved to Washington University and joined the faculty. Dr. Krebs was a recipient of the National Science Foundation Research Grant, the Gairdner Foundation Award, the George W. Thorn Award for Scientific Excellence, a Research Achievement Award from the American Heart Association, the Passano Foundation Award, the Albert Lasker Basic Medical Research Award, and two other National Institutes of Health University awarded him an Alumni Citation for Outstanding Professional Achievement in 1972 and an Alumni Achievement Award in 1988. involving local area networks, including Ethernet. These developments have built not only a major new industry, but also a new economic foundation. Computer networks promise to bring new opportunities for businesses and individuals alike.

Together with the entire computer industry, these companies have brought the world closer together. The Internet, for example, allows people from around the world to communicate and collaborate in real-time. This technology is transforming the way we work, learn, and live.

Moreover, these developments have also had significant social and economic impacts. They have created new jobs and industries, and have helped to spur innovation and technological advancement. The computer and networking industries have become major drivers of economic growth and development.

In summary, the computer and networking industries have had a profound impact on our society. They have brought new opportunities and challenges, and have helped to shape the world we live in today.
